

Preston Hollow gets boozier with new beer bar expected this spring

Sarah Blaskovich

Feb. 1, 2016

You might know Preston Hollow Village as the Dallas corner near Central Expressway with a Trader Joe's. It's also home to a smattering of cheery restaurants such as Modern Market, popular with families, and Vertskebab, the quick and reliable place for wraps.

Blatt Beer & Table is named for its original location, near the famous (and former) Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska. Anyone who's been there might appreciate this new restaurant's nod to one of college and minor league baseball's most beloved stadiums.

The addition of Blatt Beer & Table, a sports bar with food, could help make Preston Hollow a little snazzier after dark.

Blatt Beer & Table got its start near the famous Rosenblatt Stadium (R.I.P.!) in Omaha, Nebraska. The College World Series crowd in Omaha that fills Blatt Beer & Table is a casual, jovial group, and the Blatt in Preston Hollow is expected to have a similar vibe.

The menu will include pretzel bites, housemade sausages, chicken and waffles and more. It promises more than 30 beers on tap, up to 50 by the bottle.

Blatt Beer & Table is owned by the same parent company as Blue Sushi Sake Grill, another Preston Hollow Village restaurant.

The new Blatt Beer & Table at Walnut Hill Lane and Central Expressway will be Texas' first.

Expected to open in spring 2016 at the northwest corner of Walnut Hill Lane and Central Expressway, near Trader Joe's. blattbeer.com.

Blatt Beer & Table is named for its original location, near the famous (and former) Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska. Anyone who's been there might appreciate this new restaurant's nod to one of college and minor league baseball's most beloved stadiums.

<http://www.guidelive.com/food-and-drink/2016/02/01/preston-hollow-gets-boozier-new-blatt-beer-table>